The paradox of Chomsky on 9/11 is that he did take an incredibly unpopular stance over this - his long held view that America was the worlds leading terrorist state didn't curry him much favour in the post 9/11 jingoistic xenophobic backlash. As I remember it, he was right up there with bin Laden and Hussein as Americas Most Wanted.

MIT professor Noam Chomsky may not know exactly how or why World Trade Center 7 collapsed on September 11, 2001, but the one thing he's sure of is that there's no federal conspiracy behind it. Speaking at the University of Florida a few weeks ago, Chomsky - a well-known and often outspoken scholar and political commentator - was asked by "9/11 truther" Bob Tuskin if he was ready to join activists in their belief that the government played a hand in the destruction of WTC 7, also ...

WATCH: Noam Chomsky on 9/11. Editor. There happen to be a lot of people around who spend an hour on the internet and think they know a lot physics, but it doesn't work like that. There's a reason there are graduate schools in these departments. Chomsky tells a willing audience the thermite paper by Harrit et al is worthless, and there's "overwhelming" evidence Bush did not know about the attacks in advance.

The terrific disappointment for Truthers is that Noam Chomsky, who has criticised the US government on just about every foreign policy issue for 30 years, does not believe in the 9/11 conspiracy theory. This because Chomsky, although biased and immensely selective in his analysis, is not a stupid man, so he won't endorse a stupid theory.

Chomsky waxes profoundly on the grave and great significance of America being attacked on its own soil by those fed up with US imperialism and its incessant meddling in the affairs of other countries. 9/11 is seen as an inevitable consequence of this meddling over many decades which has caused unimaginable suffering through CIA death squads, US installed brutal dictatorships, US support of Israel and the grievous consequences of this for the Palestinian people.
